

EASTWOOD ASKS PGA TO CONSIDER MOVING PRO-AM

By PAUL MILLER

FORMER CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood confirmed today that he has asked the PGA to consider moving the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am from the beginning of February to the beginning of March to increase the chances of good weather for the often-soggy tournament.

But National Weather Service officials said the probability of dry weather at the beginning of March is no better than February.

In fact, said Robert Renard, local record-keeper for the weather service, over the last 20 years there has been more rain in the first week of March than in the first week of February (see chart, page 8A).

"As March goes on, it gets drier and drier," said Renard, "but not at the beginning of the month."

"We looked at the figures for the last couple of years," Eastwood said from his office on the Warner Bros. lot

Bladders in the basement

■ Unique proposal could undo water shortage's no-growth purpose

By KIRSTIE WILDE

WHAT PART of "There's no water left for new construction" don't you understand?

To that question, a creative, energetic, pugnacious man like Frank Knight answers, "All of it!"

He's tried to get water to build a home on his spectacular beachfront lot in Pacific Grove by getting on that city's "water waiting list" and had no luck. He's 29th on the list with virtually no hope of moving to the top soon.

He's tried to buy water credits from the Pebble Beach Company, but the city council opined that it wouldn't be "democratic" for someone to jump the queue just because he had money to buy water credits.

Now Knight, owner of the successful local company, Adventures By The Sea, proposes to haul water by truck every month from Patterson, California, and pump it into 1,500-gallon water bladders under his house, until such time as Cal-Am and the government figure out how to supply him and the rest of the Peninsula with adequate water for all property owners.

And darned if his "harebrained scheme" didn't get through the Pacific Grove City Council Feb. 9.

A council motion to stop Knight failed on a 3 to 3 tie. That means the planning department is legally required to process Knight's building permit, according to City Attorney George Thacher. Council member Robert Huitt concluded, "If the Knights are willing to take the risk and try this, let's let them and see how it works," adding that the council should look at these creative water solutions on a "case-by-case basis."

Knight's wife, Michelle — a city council member — stepped down from deliberations because of the obvious conflict of interest. Voting to allow the Knights to go forward were Morrie Fisher, Christie Martine and Huitt.

Frank and Michelle Knight were pleasantly surprised when the Pacific Grove City Council approved their novel proposal to truck in water and store it in plastic "water bladders" under their beachfront house, pending a more traditional water supply from Cal-Am.

Mr. Ueberroth's great adventure

By PAUL MILLER

PETER UEBERROTH leads a charmed life.

The man who ran the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles and spent five years as Commissioner of Major League Baseball topped it all Monday when he was assigned to Tiger Woods' foursome for the final round of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Ueberroth, who played in the tournament as an amateur, was right there with Woods — for every drive, chip and putt — as the young golf phenom overcame a 7-stroke deficit to capture the Pebble Beach crown.

"It's the only time I can think of in the history of sport that an average person off the street was on the field of play during an historic sporting event," he said after returning to his office in Newport Beach.

Ueberroth, one of the new owners of the Pebble Beach Company and a member of the charity board that runs the pro-am tournament, isn't exactly an average guy off the street.

But he says no strings were pulled to get him into Woods' group for the final round.

"My pro partner for the tournament, Jim Furyk, had the same score after three rounds — 209 — as Woods. And that's how the PGA makes assignments after the cut," Ueberroth explained.

Bank robber escapes after Carmel heist

By PAUL MILLER

A BANK ROBBER took an undisclosed amount of cash from the First National Bank of Central California at the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center Thursday afternoon. As the robber demanded cash from a teller at the bank on Carmel Rancho Lane, Alan Williams, president of Carmel Development Co., was making a deposit just two tellers away.

"The guy's standing two doors down and the next thing I know he's gone and everybody's excited," Williams said.

He was contacted by The Pine Cone on his cell phone soon after the robbery while waiting inside the bank to be interviewed by the FBI.

Williams said the man was very calm, did not display a weapon and gave no hint of his intention until he approached the teller.

"I never knew what happened until he was gone," Williams said.

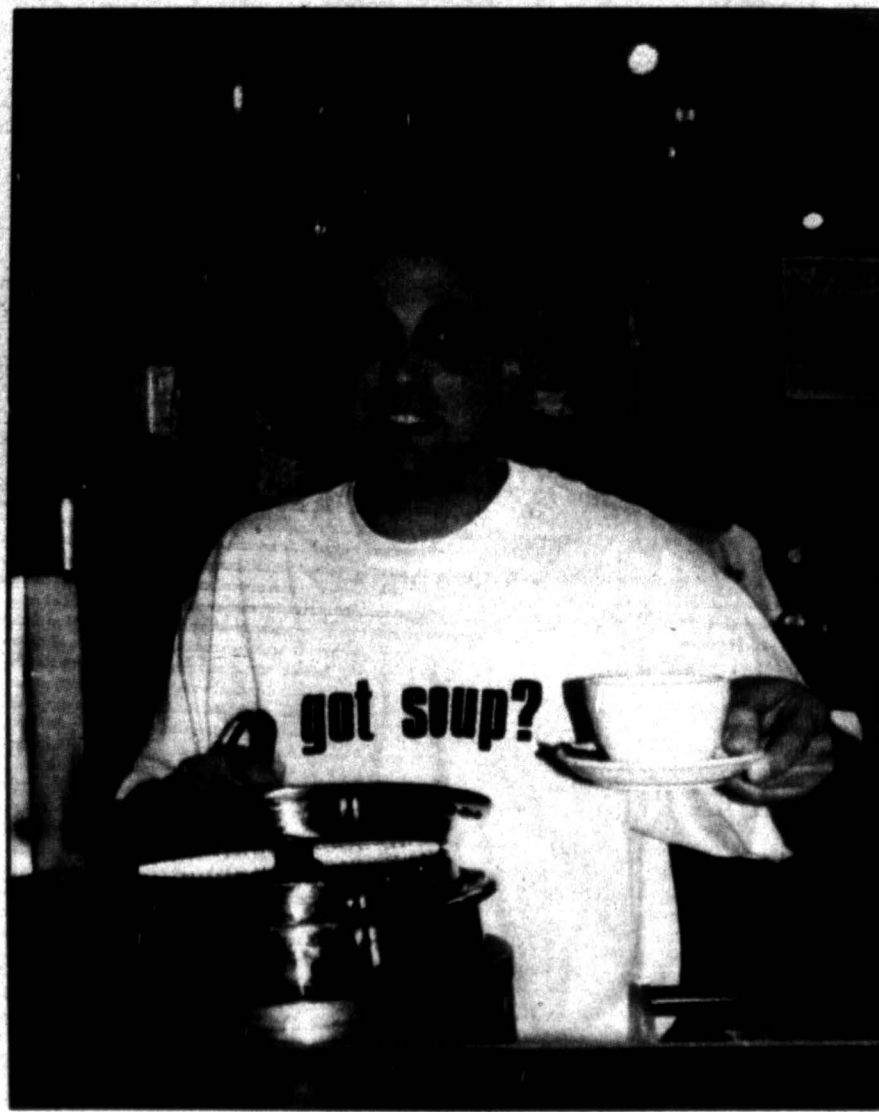

He described the man as white, about 5-10, with a medium build. He seemed to be about 30 years old and was wearing a green army jacket and sunglasses, Williams said.

"He left the bank and a teller followed him to see which way he went," Williams said. "But he disappeared into the parking lot on the south side of the bank. The teller came back in and said, 'We've just been robbed.'"

Law enforcement officials received the call at 3:27 p.m.,

Truck-bashing results in Cachagua machete attack

TWO JENSEN Camp residents ended up in a machete fight on Cachagua Road the afternoon of Feb. 8 after one — 31-year-old Todd Spring — reportedly tried to run the other — 46-year-old Donald Vierra — off the road with his truck.

Spring, a construction worker, rammed Vierra from behind with his truck, according to the Monterey County Sheriff's Department report. In retaliation, Vierra, described by the report as a "care-giver," allegedly attacked Spring with a machete.

Both men suffered minor injuries and both were arrested. Spring was charged with two counts of assault with a deadly weapon; Vierra was charged with attempted murder.

Vierra is being held at Monterey County Jail on $250,000 bail. Spring was released on a $15,000 bail bond Feb. 9.

City employees ready for straight talk from candidates

By TAMARA GRIPPI

CANDIDATES FOR mayor and city council should face some pointed questions about Carmel's budget crisis from city employees during a "brown bag" forum scheduled for Feb. 16.

Members of the employee associations want the candidates to get more specific about how they plan to balance the city's budget, said organizer Rose Franzen.

Several employees told The Pine Cone that the decisions made this year will be critical.

"We're up against the same old thing," said Carmel Fire Captain Chuck August. "Money's tight. And whenever money gets tight, the first place they look is the employees' salaries."

While the city and the employees agreed on a 3.5 percent salary increase for the 1999/2000 fiscal year, city workers have been concerned about how raises will be handled in the future.

This year's salary increases cost the city approximately $225,000, which came out of "one-time" funds that won't be available next year, according to Carmel City Administrator Jere Kersnar.

Last year, Kersnar warned the council that it will have to come up with new revenues to cover these costs in the future. He predicted that within the next two to three years the city will need new annual revenues of approximately $700,000.

Many employees are curious about how the candidates propose to provide that kind of money.

"Every one of them — in their remarks to the press — have said that their number one priority is balancing the budget," Franzen said. "I think we can spend the time we've got talking about that and how that fits in with our interactions with the city."

Franzen said the forum has more to do with the city's long-term stability than concerns about salary increases.

"This has nothing to do with negotiations," Franzen said. "This is more about what they're doing to raise necessary money that will lead to financial stability."

Remarks made by various candidates about "increasing efficiency" have made some employees nervous.

"We'd like to pin that down," said one employee, who did not wish to be identified. "What does that mean? Everyone makes 'mom and apple pie' statements about doing more with less. But not everyone understands what that entails."

Organizers will be informally polling the employees to gather a list of questions, which will be given to the candidates three days before the forum.

While it's been a few years since there has been an employee sponsored forum, city workers have held question-and-answer sessions in the past when critical issues have

Window-smashing burglar strikes again

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A NIGHT-SHROUDED burglar who smashes store windows to snatch jewelry from nearby display cases struck again in the wee hours of Feb. 9, swiping a $1,400 pendant from Mark Areias Jewelers, on San Carlos Street.

Mark Areias Jewelers on San Carlos was again the victim of a window-breaking burglar Feb. 9. The broken pane, leaned against the column in front of the store, appears to have been smashed with an axe-head.

The store was burglarized in the same manner Oct. 4, when $10,000 worth of jewelry was taken from a display case inside the window.

Carmel Police Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras said this latest burglary, which happened between 3 and 5:30 a.m., was not seen or heard by anyone — not even the attendant in the Shell station across the street.

"Nobody saw or heard anything, and again the alarm didn't activate," he said. "We're at a bit of a loss at the moment."

After the alarm did not sound during the October burglary, Mark Areias Jewelers added a window-smash mechanism, according to Poitras. That alarm also failed to sound when the store was burglarized Feb. 9.

Kocek Jewelers was burglarized the same way during the early morning hours of Dec. 3.

But this more recent burglary may have left clues to the criminal — or at least the criminal's pattern — according to Poitras. The window appeared to have been smashed with the head of an axe, similar to burglaries reported in Pacific Grove and Monterey during the past five years, he said.

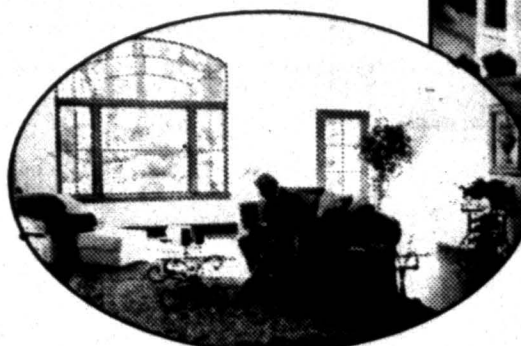

"We believe an axe was used to attack this window, which ties back to a whole series of similar cases," he said. "In this instance there was a hole in this window which really looks like an axe head. If that's true, there may be a connection."

The only incident not fitting in with the trend was the burglary of crystal, linen and China store Elegant Set in October, in which a rock was used to smash the window and a vase, not jewelry, was stolen.

Most jewelry store owners have kept the recent spate of burglaries in mind, remembering to remove their valuable pieces from their window displays at night, according to Poitras.

"They usually keep their display cases bare at night, or only display pieces with a low dollar value," he said. "I'd sure like to catch this guy, whoever he is."

Collectible envelopes mark legendary crash of the Macon

By TAMARA GRIPPI

SIXTY-FIVE years after the airship Macon fell out of the sky into the waters off Point Sur and sank, her memory flies again in a series of commemorative cards and envelopes being issued by the Monterey Peninsula Stamp Club to raise money for the restoration of the Pt. Sur Lighthouse.

The collectible envelopes and postcards — which come in a series of four designs — bring to life the dramatic end of the 785-foot-long dirigible that occurred Feb. 12, 1935.

The four sets will be on sale at both Carmel area post offices on Feb. 12 — the anniversary of the crash.

The U.S.S. Macon was a marvel of aviation and a formidable weapon in its time. It served as a flying aircraft carrier that could launch and recover five "Sparrow Hawk" aircraft while in the air.

Christened March 11, 1933, the Macon was the last airship built by the U.S. and flew for less than two years before its demise.

"Its life was very brief but very exciting," said Harold Seyferth of the stamp collector's group.

Just before sunset on Feb. 12, 1935, the Macon's huge tail section crumpled and broke off, said Carol O'Neil, historian for the lighthouse keepers. The crew attempted to save the airship by throwing out some of the heavy equipment.

That effort backfired when the airship rose from 1,400 feet to 5,000 feet, causing the over-pressure vents on the helium gas bags to open. The Macon lost altitude and came down, "actually settling very gently on the water," O'Neil explained.

Since the U.S. Navy fleet had accompanied the airship on its journey, rescue of the Macon's personnel was relatively easy. Only two members of the 83-person crew died in the accident.

"It happened right off Point Sur with all the light keepers watching," O'Neil said. "It was our only really glitzy shipwreck."

Ironically, the commander of the Macon, Herbert "Lucky" Wiley, had been only one of two survivors on the Macon's sister ship, the U.S.S. Akron, when it crashed a few years earlier.

In 1990, the U.S. Navy and the Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute used an undersea "rover" to film the wreckage of the Macon at the bottom of the ocean.

Following the ship

The commemorative sets — called "cachets" — are fashioned after a series of cards and envelopes that chronicled the Macon's travels from 1933 to 1935.

Seyferth owns a collection of those valuable cards and envelopes that followed the Macon as it participated in such events as the Oakland Armistice Day Parade and the greeting of the U.S. Fleet on its return to the San Diego Base in 1934.

Some of those old sets could be worth as much as a couple hundred dollars, Seyferth said. The most valuable card was hand-stamped and sent out on the evening after the crash, he said.

Seyferth remembers being awed, as a young boy, by the huge airship when his uncle took him on a tour of the Macon in its hanger at Moffet Field in 1933.

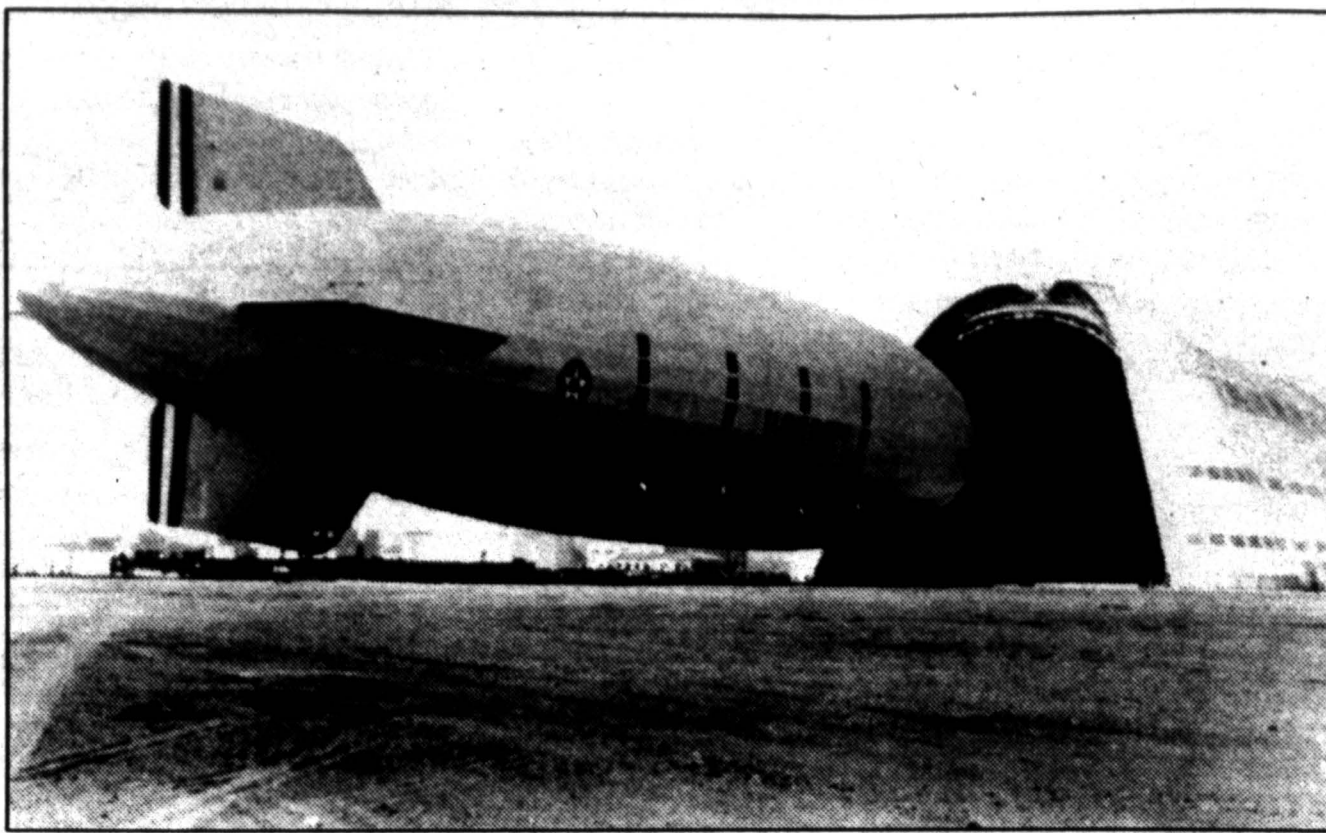

The dirigible hangars are still a familiar sight off Highway 101 north of San Jose, but most people driving by don't know about the dramatic purpose served by the oddly shaped, giant buildings.

Young Seyferth was fascinated as he took an elevator ride up to the Macon and stepped in to see what the inside of an airship looked like.

"Aluminum framing was all that I could see," he said.

The loss of the Macon marked the end of the airship era. The only other remaining dirigible, the U.S.S. Los Angeles, was scrapped soon afterwards.

"It was the middle of the depression and they kind of gave up the airship thing," O'Neil said.

The U.S.S. Macon, photographed outside a Moffett Field hangar in the early 1930s, was the last airship built by the United States.

But in its day, the Macon was one of the most exciting things to pass by the California coast. "It's one of the things we almost always talk about in our tours," O'Neil said.

And anyone who had the chance to see "those crazy navy pilots" flying their planes out of the floating ship wouldn't soon forget, O'Neil said.

The commemorative envelope sets will be on sale for $2 each from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Feb. 12 at both the downtown Carmel-by-the-Sea Post Office and the main branch at the mouth of the Valley on Via Nona Marie.

been at stake, August said.

"Obviously we had to do it when Clint was running for mayor," he joked.

"We rarely get a chance to meet in a group with that many members of the council," Franzen said. "We just wanted it to be our time and our place to have them focus on our concerns and issues."

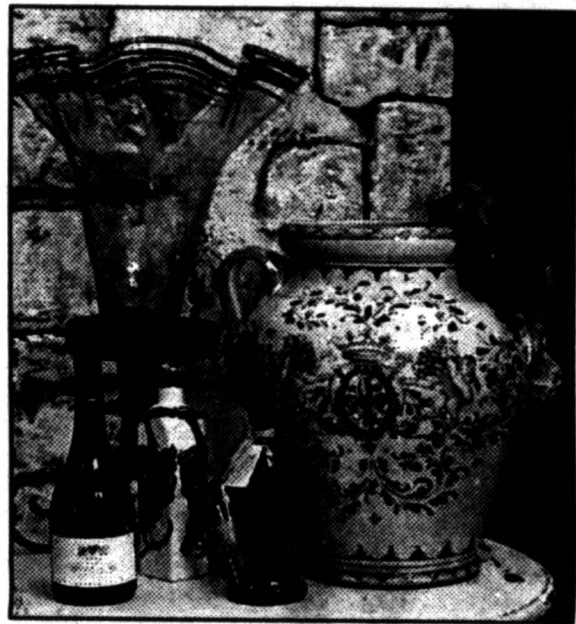

Franzen stressed that the independent forum will take place during the employees' personal time — their lunch hour — and that no city funds have been used to pay for the event. All funding has come out of the employees' pockets.

Former Carmel Mayor Jean Grace will moderate the Feb. 16 event which will begin at noon in Sunset Center's Carpenter Hall.

The Carmel Pine Cone will sponsor a city-wide candidates' forum March 13 at 7 p.m. in Carpenter Hall.

TIGER, DUVAL, BOLTON JUST MISS DEBUT OF THE SPA AT PEBBLE BEACH

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

SOOTHING SEA and subdued earth tones — echoes of the nearby ocean and Del Monte Forest — are incorporated into the new 22,000-square-foot luxury Spa at Pebble Beach, meant to help those who come for beauty or therapeutic treatments to unwind. Coral terra cotta floor tiles lend warmth to the cool tones and large seashell-shaped lights remind guests they are near the beach and within earshot of the Pacific surf.

The Spa, adjacent to the 24-suite Casa Palmero hotel, welcomed its first paying guests Tuesday, even as dozens of workmen hurried to put finishing touches throughout the PIDA Group Architects' two-story structure designed by Bill Zimmerman of Costa Mesa.

The stunning Mediterranean-style building complements Casa Palmero in architectural style and is appointed with large, original abstract acrylic paintings by Carmel artist Barbara Johnson, framed nature prints by Chad Buck and John Bellingheri, one-of-a-kind hand-blown vases and decorative accessories selected by interior designer Ernest Martinez of Studio 808, San Francisco.

Casa Palmero, Pebble Beach's third hotel, also designed by The PIDA Group and Martinez, opened last fall.

During last week's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, such sports and entertainment luminaries as Tiger Woods, Michael Bolton and David Duval stayed in luxury suites there, but were a week too early to soothe their aching golf muscles in the waters of The Spa.

The ground floor of The Spa is for women, with duplicated facilities for men upstairs. All treatment areas and the conservatory are available for couples.

As Spa users enter the handsome changing room, they are given towels, bathrobes and spa sandals before disrobing. Guests are met by their assigned attendant in a waiting room or in the conservatory, an area reserved for quiet rest, relaxation and meditation. This solarium looks out onto Casa

Palmero and its gardens, where an imposing live oak dominates and rhododendrons and spring flowers border the lawn. Here juices and teas are served with "Cypress Cuisine"

HOW MUCH HAS IT RAINED?

Official weather service data for the first week of February and the first week of March for the past 20 years show that moving the AT&T Pro-Am to March might result in more rain delays for the tournament, and that half the years have seen very little rainfall during the February golf event.

in Hollywood, "and the numbers seemed to indicate moving the tournament a bit later would be a good idea." Eastwood is doing post-production on his next movie, "Space Cowboys," which will be released in August.

Eastwood has played in the pro-am for decades, is chairman of the charitable foundation that runs the tournament and is part-owner of the Pebble Beach Company. He proposed reorganizing the PGA's West Coast winter tour so that the AT&T Pro-Am comes last.

"They could start in Hawaii, go to San Diego, Los Angeles, Palm Springs and then Pebble," he said. "I don't know if it will happen, but I have asked the PGA to consider it," Eastwood said.

Golf experts say moving the tournament to the summer is out of the question, because those months are booked solid with other PGA events.

Rain is virtually unknown in Pebble Beach during the summer months, and ticket sales would undoubtedly be much higher, but so would the cost of staging the tournament.

"There is much more daylight in the summer and there are a lot more tee times the Pebble Beach Company can sell for top dollar," one source commented. "Closing the course in the summer for a week would cost quite a bit of money."

Eastwood said he didn't think moving the tournament one month would have much business impact on the P.B. Co.

He said he thought John Steinbeck had it right in East of Eden when he wrote, "It never failed that during the dry years the people forgot about the rich years, and during the wet years they lost all memory of the dry years. It was always that way."

"I remember when, during the drought, the entire tournament was played on sunny days," Eastwood said. But the rain of the last five years has dampened some players' enthusiasm for the tournament.

As Eastwood spoke in Los Angeles, Tiger Woods was trying to extend his string of six consecutive tournament wins at the Buick Invitational in San Diego. But a big storm was pelting Southern California.

"It's raining like heck outside right now," Eastwood said.

The pros and their amateur partners are assigned to four-somes and given tee times for the final round of the AT&T Pro-Am in reverse order of the pros' scores. Woods and Furyk started the day in seventh place and teed off before leaders Mark Gogel and Mark Brooks, who had identical scores of 204 after three rounds.

"There's no way Ueberroth could have pulled strings if he'd wanted to," one golf official said. "The rules are strict and he was just lucky."

Lucky to be alongside as sports history was made.

Pro golfers have virtually no chance to watch their opponents play, except on television. Spectators usually don't see the action on every hole. But if you're right there — in the foursome — you have more than a front row seat. You are involved.

Ueberroth said, with all the talk about the possibility of a Tiger Woods comeback, he was excited and had trouble sleeping the night before. But did he ever have doubts about Woods' ability to overcome such a big deficit?

"From the moment I saw Tiger on the putting green in the morning, I thought he could win — he's that good," Ueberroth said.

Former Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood — who also played in this year's pro-am — said Woods "has a little stardust on his shoulders right now."

ROBBERY

but would not provide any other details about the robbery and would not say how much cash was taken. The suspect reportedly left the area on foot, and was last seen heading towards Via Nona Marie. Bank officials also would not comment.

Williams said sheriff's deputies arrived on the scene within 10 minutes after the robbery, "and that was after they had cruised around for awhile looking for the guy," he said.

Deputy Pete Dainty canvassed nearby businesses in search of anyone who had seen the suspect while others interviewed bank customers and employees inside.

A Monterey County Sheriff's Department substation is located nearby at the Crossroads Shopping Village. Williams praised the tellers and the deputies for their "very professional" handling of the robbery.

The robber also seemed to know what he was doing, according to Williams.

"He picked an ideal time, with just two tellers on the floor. He was in the bank, and I was there, and that was it," Williams said.

Eastwood compared Woods' amazing chip shot for an eagle on 15 to a shot made by Hale Irwin on 18 in 1984.

"Irwin hooked his tee shot into the ocean — but the ball hit a rock and bounced right back on the fairway, and he ended up winning the tournament," Eastwood recalled. "When I hit a ball into the ocean, it sinks."

Ueberroth called Wood's victory the "greatest comeback in sports that I've ever heard of."

And he's a de facto authority on sports history.

Ueberroth, already installed as president of the organizing committee for the 1984 Olympic Games, was in the crowd at the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid in January 1980 when the U.S. hockey team achieved a miraculous 3-1 victory over the Soviet squad.

Six years later he was in the commissioner's box at Shea Stadium when Boston Red Sox first baseman Bill Buckner let an easy ground ball go through his legs, costing the Red Sox the World Series.

Any fan would brag endlessly about being in the stands for both those sporting events, which are among the most important of the 20th Century.

But Ueberroth said that, for him, there was no comparison between watching sports history and participating in it.

"There's a huge difference between sitting in the stands and actually playing," he said.

No one could blame Ueberroth if he had been momentarily distracted and was not paying close attention when Woods made his phenomenal shot on 15.

But Ueberroth said he saw the swing and followed the ball as it bit the green and abruptly rolled into the cup.

"When you're playing with Tiger Woods, you watch every shot he makes," Ueberroth said.

He played with Furyk, Clint Eastwood and Fuzzy Zoeller during the first three rounds of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. But Ueberroth played a practice round with Woods Feb. 1 at Cypress Point. How does Ueberroth rank Woods among the great sports figures in the world?

Without hesitating, Ueberroth said Tiger Woods is "a superstar — in fact, he's the only true superstar."

Kitty Margolis

At the Jazz & Blues Company in Carmel's Crossroads this Saturday, Feb. 12, San Francisco jazz diva Kitty Margolis makes one of her increasingly rare visits to the Monterey Peninsula to perform at a special Valentine's concert. Margolis, a jazz treasure and a big hit at last year's Monterey Jazz Festival, will be accompanied by bassist Stan Poplin and guitarist Steve Erquiaga and "will be performing songs about love and all its permutations, from the sublime to the ridiculous."

A graduate of Harvard University and San Francisco State, Margolis has released three albums on her own small independent label, Mad Kat Records, and has a fourth on the way. Nominated in 1999 for the fifth straight year as one of the top jazz vocalists "Deserving Wider Recognition" in the Downbeat International Critics Poll, Margolis has performed and recorded with an endless list of jazz greats including Joe Henderson, Elvin Jones and Lionel Hampton. Later this year Margolis will make her debut at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, where she will participate in the prestigious Women in Jazz Festival. Concerts throughout the United States and a summer tour of Europe are also in store.

CARDINALES SAY:

'Come and get your soup'

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

There's progress being made in the fight against tuberculosis. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the number of new tuberculosis cases in the United States has dropped 7.5 percent from last year and since 1992, TB cases have decreased thirty-one percent. This has been attributed to the resurgence of individual states attempting to wipe out the disease entirely. We seem to be moving in the right direction towards eliminating tuberculosis.

Submarines have fascinated Alan Winick ever since he was eleven years old. Many, many years later, Winick remains so fascinated with submarines that he designed and built a one-person submarine. He took the submarine out for two fifteen minute dives in shallow waters off the east coast and later tested his creation in deep, uncharted waters with divers operating controls from the outside. It was all systems go for the senior mariner whose ultimate goal is to create a program for students in marine archeology.

AFTER ENDURING the longest wait for lunch in Carmel's history, Rocco Cardinale finally served up the first bowl of soup at his downtown cafe Feb. 10.

To celebrate the end of his two-year quest to serve soup, salad and sandwiches at Caffè Cardinale, Rocco and his staff celebrated by wearing T-shirts that asked "Got Soup?"

"Yup," was the answer on the back.

"Finally we're done and now we can start having fun and perk up that time of day between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.," Cardinale told The Pine Cone.

The mood at the cafe was festive as Rocco's mother, Carmela, was the first in line to get a bowl of white bean and pasta soup.

Rocco and his father, Gaspar Cardinale, have been on a roller coaster ride with the city ever since they first applied for permission to serve the lunchtime foods two years ago.

After being turned down by the Carmel Planning Commission, the Cardinales were delighted to get the go-ahead from the city council. Their victory soured a month later when the council reversed its earlier decision.

At the crux of the so-called "soup saga" was a 1997 food ordinance that established strict categories for Carmel restaurants.

The ordinance, which was intended to protect Carmel from fast food and litter, allowed Caffè Cardinale to sell just two types of food — coffee and pastries.

After losing at the council meeting, the Cardinales decided to take their cause to the Carmel voters. They collected over 500 signatures on an initiative petition to change the law.

With the prospect of an expensive special election hanging over its head, the council decided to accept the petition last October. Mayor Ken White, who had abstained from voting on the issue a year before, broke the council's tie.

The Cardinales have spent the last four months working out the nitty-gritty. They set up a catering agreement with the Upper Crust Bakery at the Crossroads Shopping Center and ordered a panini grill from Italy.

The cafe will now be offering a soup of the day as well as a selection of ham, turkey and vegetable grilled panini. Salad fans will probably have to wait until spring or summer to get a leafy lunch, according to Cardinale.

"Once everyone comes in, they'll say, 'Oh, this is all you wanted to do?'" Rocco said. "It's very simple, very easy. Now my staff can have lunch at my place instead of going someplace else."

Cardinale, who gave the lunch foods a trial run during the AT&T weekend, said he had a great response from customers. Cardinale said he's finally ready to put the soup saga to rest, once and for all.

"Everybody's tired of talking about it," he said. "I've answered more questions regarding stupid soup jokes than I can tell you."

Carmel Valley

Highway 1 intersection improvement gets supes' thumbs-up

By MARY BROWNFIELD

DRIVERS STUCK in traffic at the mouth of the Valley should soon get a tiny bit of relief, thanks to a vote of approval Feb. 8 by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors for a second right-hand turn lane off of Carmel Valley Road onto northbound Highway 1.

The project, which ends just 800 feet uphill from Carmel Valley Road, was decreed by county planning commissioners last year. They rejected the permit and called for a second lane to be built the entire way to Carmel High School instead.

But supervisors, who also support a climbing lane, approved the right-turn lane unanimously.

The project — one of many "operational improvements" designed by Caltrans to free-up traffic on the congested road now that the Hatton Canyon freeway plan is dead — will have its final go-ahead as soon as the 10-day appeal period has ended, according to Caltrans Project Manager Steven

"If that passes without any appeals, then I believe the permit can be issued," DiGrazia said. Remaining design details will be hammered out in collaboration with the county.

After the project is put out for bidding and a contract is signed, the construction can commence, according to DiGrazia.

"We should be able to have this thing in construction by the summer," he said.

But Caltrans is well aware of the Monterey Peninsula's increased traffic congestion during the tourist-filled, event-laden summer months, according to DiGrazia, and will try its best to not add to the troubles while the turn lane is built.

"We will try to be sensitive relative to local holidays and special events," he said. "We will be careful with the timing of the contract so it has a minimal impact."

The project should take about six months to complete, though traffic will only be affected part of the time. "The impacts to traffic won't be for the whole six months, but you'll see some kind of activity throughout that six months," DiGrazia said.

Learn to save your dog or cat with pet first aid class

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

IF YOU don't know what to do if your beloved dog eats poison mushrooms or gets in nasty fight with a raccoon, the Red Cross can help.

The Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross is offering Pet First Aid Classes for owners of dogs and cats. The course will teach the basics of first aid for wounds, burns, fractures, shock and sudden illness until the pet can be seen by a veterinarian.

A life saved

One local pet first aid graduate was able to save her dog just a week after taking the class. She recognized the symptoms of poisoning and realized that her dog was going into shock, said Carri Iglesias, health and safety program coordinator for the Carmel chapter.

"Otherwise she couldn't have gotten dog to vet as quickly as she did and the dog might not have made it," said Iglesias.

The classes will be offered from 6 to 10 p.m. on March 2 and July 6 and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on May 27 at the Carmel chapter.

The $25 cost for the class includes a textbook on pet first aid. For more information, call the chapter at 624-6921.

C.V.'s Baum & Blume a real find for those who search

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

RESTAURATEURS come from San Francisco and the Bay Area, gourmets fly into the Carmel Valley and a carriage trade from all over the U.S. figure among the clientele base of Baum & Blume café, food-to-go and catering. A two-room enterprise at 4 El Caminito in Carmel Valley Village, Baum & Blume also has provided take-home food to lucky valley residents for the past 14 years.

Baum & Blume matriarch Jane Morgan Wenzler is the ultimate food professional — a perfectionist who takes her food, but not herself, seriously. At least that's how she described her attitude toward the complex food turned out by herself and her three grown offspring, Derek, Diane and Debby.

During an interview in the hub of the operation, the fragrant kitchen equipped with Wolf range, hanging

We sampled a three-fruit marmalade that confiturier Derek was packaging in hand-labeled jars, and Debby took time out from her vegetarian crêpe making to introduce us to Baum & Blume's five-part enterprise.

KNIGHTS

Health, with its notoriously conservative environmental health director, Walter Wong. (After all, Wong does not even approve of using reclaimed water to flush toilets.)

In a Dec. 21 letter to the Knights, Wong wrote, "From a public health standpoint, the concept of using bulk hauled water to meet domestic needs is unacceptable" because it is not an "assured, reliable and adequate supply of water at all times that is pure, wholesome, potable and does not endanger the health of consumers" as required by state law.

Wong also said he's never heard of any city or county that allows bulk hauled water as a source of supply for new construction.

Wong sent copies of his verdict on the Knight proposal to the City of P.G., the California Coastal Commission (which also would have to approve Knight's plan), the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and Knight's representative, Larry Foy, who is now retired from Cal-Am Water Co. after working for decades to get a dam built to solve the Peninsula's water problems.

Less energetic men than Knight might have given up when faced with Wong's stern rebuke. But instead, Knight set about to prove Wong wrong.

Milk, wine, water and 7-UP

Knight enlisted the support of the bottled water industry and California state law to bolster his opinion that bulk liquids — be they milk, wine or water — are hauled by truck for human consumption every day in California.

Knight presented a copy of state safety code regulations pertaining to bottled, vend, hauled and processed water to show that companies which produce and transport bottled water are subject to stringent regulations and licensing requirements.

In a Jan. 19 letter Knight's attorney, Anthony Lombardo, challenged Wong to give some evidence if he was implying that "the water delivered to the Seven-Up Bottling Plant in Modesto is a potential health hazard." That would certainly be news to parents watching their kids guzzle soda pop in town.

Wong responded with a list of unappetizing scenarios which might transform pure water from a supplier into contaminated water in Knight's subterranean bladder:

■ What if the driver of the tanker has a cold or is a smoker and doesn't wash his hands?

■ What if the driver "drops the hose in a puddle or on the ground which is contaminated by animal waste?"

■ What if the hauler forgets to put the lid back on the water bladder? It would be an "invitation to rodents such as rats and mice, to reptiles such as snakes and lizards and to birds and insects and other such potential sources of contamination."

Not only that, wrote Wong, the water would be so expensive — about $400 a month — that the Knights might not bathe as often as they should. Does that mean that no one will want to sit next to Michelle at the city council table?

"I live alone, she can shower at my house," quipped Fisher.

The president of the Healthy Water Association took exception to Wong's hygiene argument. "While that argument might apply in a slum outside Mexico City where people cannot afford trucked water, it certainly does NOT apply to a rich community like Pacific Grove," said Paul Mason, who added that thousands of families in Iowa use hauled water for their domestic supply because of a lack of accessible ground water.

Knight told the council that he and his wife are capable of managing a healthy, hygienic lifestyle without help from the government. "Walter Wong is treating us like teenagers," he said.

'From a public health standpoint, the concept of using bulk hauled water to meet domestic needs is unacceptable...'

— Walter Wong

Dangerous precedent

After the vote to block Knight's proposal failed, council members Steve Honegger, Jim Costello and Mayor Koffman pushed a resolution to study the idea further. "I'm not saying I'm against it; I'm just saying I want to be educated," Koffman said. Honegger was concerned about a proliferation of trucks hauling water through the streets of Pacific Grove. Costello said a much cleaner way to solve the current water shortage would be to allow transfer of excess commercial water credits to people on the waiting list, an idea the council has resisted.

But lurking in back of the minds of many was the concern outlined by Wong's associate at the health department, Mary Anne Dennis, namely, the undoing of the water shortage as a method for halting growth.

"It is hard to imagine if this were approved in Pacific Grove, how we could deny a similar application anywhere in the county," she wrote, adding, "We could have new subdivisions virtually anywhere."

Carmel High student honored in company of Pro-Am celebs

JUST AS I was all set to attack my post-holiday season diet, I was faced and stumped by "The Mystery of the Shrunk Serving."

Now, as long as I can remember, I've heard foreigners comment on the outrageously oversized individual portions that Americans serve in their restaurants. And when they said "restaurants," I assure you they referred to the preponderance of basic eateries that dot most of America's normal regions — not the prissy ones that take turns being "in" places.

But somewhere along the line, the government's FDA applied its own unique take on the nutritional well-being of "We, the People."

They decided (rather undemocratically, I must say) that a "serving" — as in a helping or as in what a normal functioning descendent of Homo Erectus requires to remain Erectus — is actually equivalent to what a mouse can hold in its mouth at a time during a pantry raid.

So here I am, holding a package of six ravioli, each only a square-inch big. The calorie count says it's 350 per serving. And my disbelieving eyes read that the package supposedly holds FOUR SERVINGS — or at least it did at one point!

Well, maybe the ravioli company's packer was real hungry and swiped the other three servings and no one noticed as it was repacked....

IT WASN'T enough for Carmel High senior Kate Churchill to win first prize for the Monterey Peninsula in a 3M Corporation-sponsored essay contest on "How I would improve my school."

She actually received the honor right in front of a celebrity-studded group that had gathered to tee off for the Feb. 2 Pro-Am Celebrity Shootout!

As stars like Kevin Costner, Ray Romano, "Hercules" Kevin Sorbo, John Elway and of course former Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood looked on, Kate received a scholarship of $1,000 and another check for $5,000 that goes to her school, Carmel High.

Her English teacher, Bob Walch — (who claims to have been teaching "since dinosaurs roamed in the valley") — has seen his students consistently win the prize for the Peninsula. (There's a separate one for the Salinas area.) And thanks to the portion that goes to the school, Carmel High's scholarship fund has by now received $40,000.

Now Clint's proven to his buddies that they grow 'em well in his hometown!

Come Shine," features a few gems from the 1940s and 1950s normally associated with the signature Sinatra sound, which seems fitting after his successful 1999 Las Vegas Show "The Pack is Back" in which he portrays a young Sinatra. Caldwell, since the release of "Blue Condition" in 1996, has been touring the world relentlessly with his orchestra to sold-out shows and rave reviews. Tonight's concert starts at 7 and according to the promoters "there will be plenty of room to dance." General admission is $35. For reservations and more information, call 649-1223.

Return of the King

Down on Cannery Row at Sly McFly's, Chicago blues artist King Ernest returns to the Monterey Peninsula for his first club engagement in several years. A consummate performer, Ernest is a deeply soulful vocalist, a genuine rhythm and blues artist who has all the tools and who knows what it takes to send a crowd into a frenzy. Show starts at 9 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 12 at Sly's.

San Francisco artist Ledisi and popular guitarist Chris Cain share the bill. Recently nominated for a California Music Award, Ledisi performed at last year's Big Sur Jazz festival to great response. Her unique blend of acid jazz, soul and R&B has earned her another slot on this year's festival. She performs with her group Anibade at a dinner show between 7 and 9 p.m. at a party sponsored by the Big Sur JazzFest. At 9:30, Chris Cain performs his jazz-tinged brand of blues. For tickets and reservations call 649-8050.

Concert starts at 8 p.m. Tickets are $12 in advance and $13 at the door. Also at the Capsicum next Saturday, Feb. 19, singer Katy Moffat performs. Call 373-7379 for info.

Theatergoers' snack attacks will provide Sunset Project with $15,000

IT TAKES a lot of coffee and candy sales to bring in $15,000, but that's the sum pledged by Friends of Sunset to the Sunset

Theater Project from its concession stand revenue.

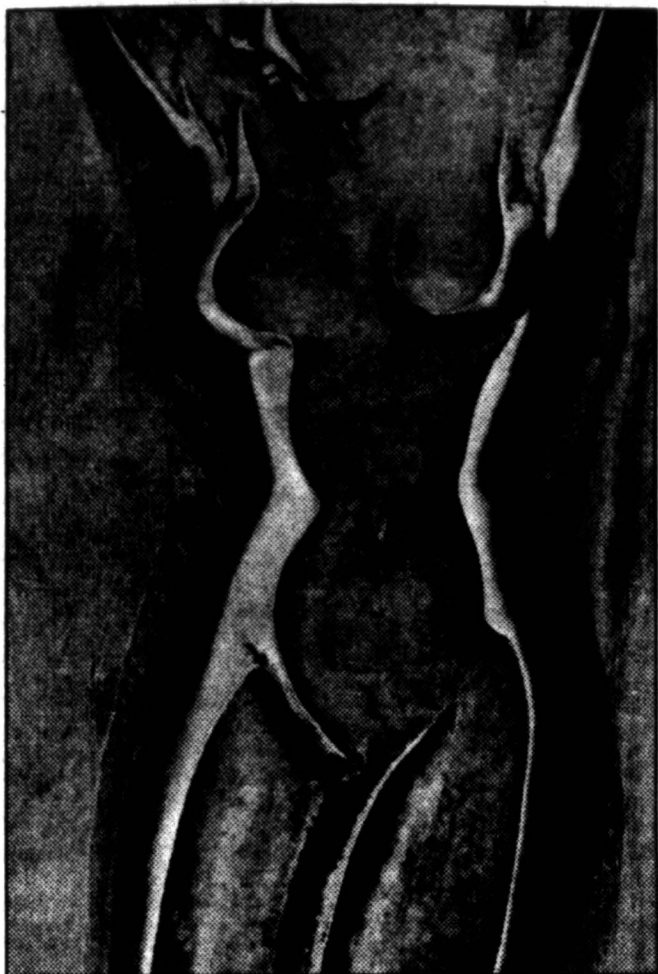

According to Mark Harner, president of Friends, the 200 members of the cultural support group are confident their volunteer hours of selling snacks before performance and intermission at Sunset Center will bring in their pledged amount. Harner turned over the first $5,000 check to Nancy Doolittle, president of Sunset Center for the Arts.

Friends of Sunset Foundation was formed in 1988 as a non-profit organization to provide services and raise funds to help support and enhance cultural activities and facilities owned and managed by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"The Whimsies of The Village"

Long ago, in 1902, developers began work on The Village that would become known as Carmel-by-the-Sea. Little did they know that living, playing, and hiding in the Forest in this area were magical little 'Whimsies'. They had lived in the forest for many, many years. They had heard tales of humans, but alas, they hadn't actually ever seen any.

The 'Whimsies' watched in awe as the developers completed one Cottage after the other, day after day. They found it amusing that the humans seemed to love the Forest as much as they did. No one really knew why the Village had such a magical and charming feel about it, but the Whimsies just kept sprinkling their Magic Dust as the Village was built, small lane by lane and Cottage by Cottage.

NOW the tale can finally be told. The Whimsies would romp and fly through the Village, night after night, as they sprinkled their 'magical Whimsie dust' over each cottage and shop so that Carmel (The Village) would have a certain magic that no other place in the whole world would have.

Night after night they flew, and romped and played as the Village grew and grew. And the humans were a magnificent lot to watch as they moved about the Village and swam in the Ocean near the Old Bath House. The Whimsies were pleased that the humans loved the little village. Each night as the Whimsies spread their magic they would look in the windows of each shop, looking for a 'home' that they could call their own. But, alas, they would fall back and sigh, and chant that nothing would seem to do.

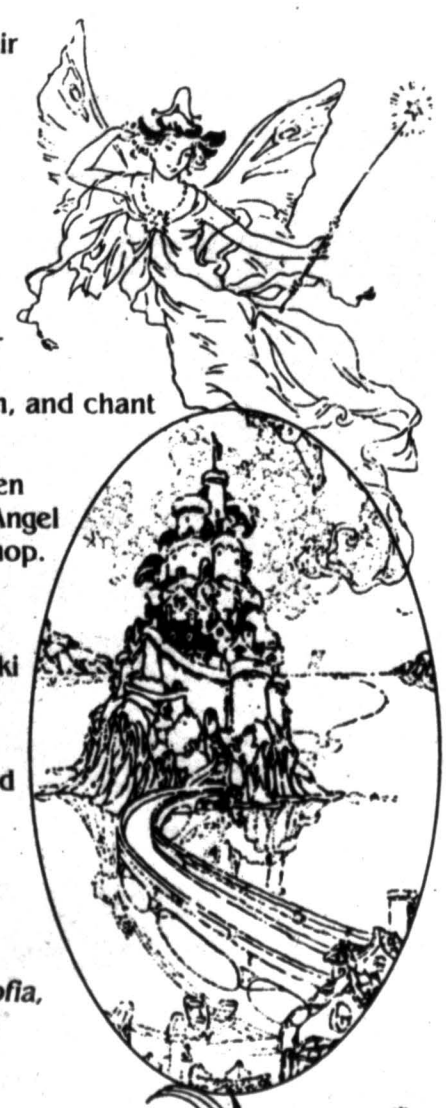

Then, one night in 1999, in December, they were sprinkling their magic in the breezeway between Mission & San Carlos and 5th and 6th streets when they happened upon a new little business, Angel Kids Gallery, and they stumbled and fell over each other as they gazed into the beautiful little shop. A loud YEESS blasted the early morning air and they knew they had found their home, at last.

A very talented and special lady was given the ability to lovingly capture the spirit of these magical little Whimsies and bring them to life for all humans to love and enjoy. Her name is Jakki Moore, and her loving renditions of the Whimsies can be seen and Adopted exclusively at the Angel Kids Gallery in Carmel.

And, oh yes, one last thing. They are a limited series, an exclusive design, and can only be found in their magical home in Carmel-by-the-Sea, California. Get the magic, today. The WHIMSIES are waiting, and so is their Magical dust that has for so many years made Carmel a charming, beautiful little village by the Sea.

The Wenzlers gear their menus, which change three times a week, to whatever fruits and vegetables are in season, what's fresh in the market, and fish from the Monterey wharf. Debby and Diane do the daily menus, while Jane creates the catering menus.

And while Baum & Blume has corporate contracts that find the Wenzlers cooking on location for 1,000 people under an auction tent; preparing and delivering breakfasts and lunches for L.A. and East Coast film crews on location shoots in Big Sur and the peninsula; serving hors d'oeuvres to 200 attorneys in a Carmel residence — they'll do dinner for two, cooking in the client's home kitchen. Recently they did just that, preparing fresh crab cocktails, assembling a salad, cooking a beef Wellington and vegetable Wellington, grilling asparagus and browning a crème brûlée they had prepared and brought with them.

"Most local home kitchens are beautiful, but not exactly functional for what we do, but we adapt," Jane said. "We can cook out of a closet — that's part of being professionals." One hot August day, Diane and Derek cooked an outdoor wedding buffet for 60 using only a Coleman stove, while swatting off swarms of mosquitoes.

Secret resource of home cooking

Baum & Blume's daily take-home soups, salads, entrées and desserts are many people's "secret resource," Debby said. They even have frozen hors d'oeuvres to take home for cocktail parties.

Soups are made daily, there is always a special salad and there are vegetarian entrées as well as chicken, fresh fish and red meat entrées ready to take home.

Everything is made from scratch in this gourmet's paradise: "We make all our own stocks — chicken, veal, vegetable, fish and shrimp," Jane said, "and we devise dishes for clients who request them." Recently, a client friend who likes German food was pleasantly surprised when the Baum and Blume kitchen created a dish that included a delicately flavored bockwurst sausage with horseradish cream sauce, fresh dill and lemon, accompanied with sweet and sour cabbage with apples, and spaetzle.

They love celebrations

The Wenzlers look forward to every special occasion with enthusiasm, creating celebration take-home menus and even serving theme dinner parties in the adjoining boutique-cum-dining room. No holiday is ignored, from Washington's birthday, Valentine's Day to Saint Patrick's Day and even John Steinbeck's birthday — while entire Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners are prepared for take-home.

"We love holidays," Jane said, "and we have an open house one day a year, always the Saturday before Thanksgiving, when we do The Lighting of the Tannebaum. We have music from a 12-string guitar, hors d'oeuvres, One-Two-Three Punch (ice cream, milk, rum, grated fresh nutmeg) and flavored popcorn. We give away door prizes from the boutique every half hour, share our recipes, and do a cooking demonstration. Last year Derek demonstrated how to bone out a shoulder of pork and roast it with Italian herbs."

A monthly newsletter prepared by Debby keeps clients apprised of new menus, celebrations and newly arrived items in the Carriage House boutique.

The next special dinner will be served in three seatings (6, 7:30 and 9 p.m.) on Valentine's Day evening, Monday, Feb. 14, for which reservations are required. The menu includes Dungeness crab bisque, sesame heart biscuits, grilled asparagus with roasted red pepper vinaigrette, and a choice of boneless leg of lamb farci, fresh petrale sole with shrimp sauce Bretonne, or vegetable Wellington with mushrooms and gorgonzola. The entrées are served with duchesse potatoes and haricots verts with lemon pecan butter. Shortbread hearts with frozen white chocolate custard and strawberry rum sauce and European roast coffee complete the meal, and each diner will go home with a Belgian chocolate favor tied up with red ribbon in a white, heart-decorated box. The tariff is $59.95 for two.

Began with garden shop

If you haven't visited Baum & Blume in Carmel Valley, you might remember the Monterey restaurant on Munras they ran for nine years under the same name. And if you're wondering about the name Baum and Blume (tree and flower), it was the name of the family garden shop behind Perry House the Wenzlers operated in Monterey for seven years before going full time into their food operation.

Now the longest-running caterers on the Monterey Peninsula, Baum and Blume has developed a philosophy of life that makes the kitchen hum with happy activity and induces its clients to return on a regular basis: Jane Wenzler says, "We're metaphysical. We figure we might just as well enjoy each day. A lot of hours go into what we do. The energy we put into what we make can be tasted."

To reach Baum and Blume, drive out Carmel Valley Road to the Village and turn left on El Caminito just before the Bernardus tasting room. You'll find it almost immediately on your left. For information, or for Valentine Dinner reservations, call 659-0400.

Art show to benefit horse sanctuary

A PORTION of proceeds from a new art show will be donated to Redwings Horse Sanctuary, located just south of Carmel.

The opening reception for the art exhibit will take place 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 12 at Galerie Plein Aire, Dolores and Fifth, Carmel. Call 625-5686.

THE BOOKSHELF

Choosing simplicity for a full life

LINDA BREEN Pierce of Carmel has written a book about real people finding peace and fulfillment in a complex world — which is the actual subhead of her book, "Choosing Simplicity." The book is based on 211 responses — from 40 states and eight countries — to her Pierce Simplicity Study, accomplished primarily through her website, www.mbay.net/~pierce.

Pierce wanted to know what prompted and guided these people on their journeys; what challenges they faced; if their peers accepted them; if they felt deprived; and what benefits they realized through simplifying their lives.

What she learned was that at the core of why these people wanted to simplify their lives was their need for more time and energy to enjoy family and close friends. Many learned that less was more, that doing chores and projects for themselves increased their energy and satisfaction, that by lightening their material possessions, a spiritual and emotional lightness followed.

But this is simplifying Pierce's study. Her 348-page book, published in January by Gallagher Press, Carmel ($16.95), details and tallies the results of her survey.

What prompted Pierce to write the book was her personal search with her husband Jim for simplicity. Linda, with a law degree from Hastings, and her husband, a computer consultant, gave up financially successful careers in Los Angeles to move to the Monterey Peninsula. It was the beginning of their journey to simplify their lives.

Breen will discuss her book from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 16 at The Thunderbird Bookshop, 3600 Barnyard Shopping Village, Carmel. For information, call 624-1803.

THE CONE

Five generations of Carmel history: Linsley/Linhart cousins' reunion

SPECIAL TO THE PINE CONE

THE GREAT-GRANDCHILDREN of Mary Louisa Dummage (the grandchildren of Mabel Stallings Linsley) will gather at the Pine Inn over President's Day weekend, February 18-21, to celebrate five generations of family history in Carmel.

According to her descendants, Mary Louisa Stallings (nee Pearce) came to Pacific Grove in 1896 and married Melvin Norton in 1898. She came over the hill to Carmel and on July 4, 1903, opened Carmel's first restaurant. It was in a tent on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores — the present site of the Corner Cupboard. Mary paid Frank Devendorf, one of the owners of the Carmel Development Corporation, a $5 gold piece as down payment on the lot.

After divorcing Melvin Norton, Mary married Will Dummage in 1913. He had worked as a plumber in Carmel since 1898. Mary's sister, Laura Pearce, was married to Phillip Wilson, a local Realtor. The Wilsons built Carmel's first and only golf course.

Mary's daughter, Mabel Stallings, was raised in Carmel and was the first graduate of Sunset School. She also had the first library card in Carmel. Mabel's brother Leland Stallings owned the Carmel Stamp Shop on Dolores Street for many years, and her half-brother Rob Norton was the first Carmel Police Chief.

In 1913 Mabel married George H. Linsley

Jr., the nephew of Wally and Gussie Johnson who lived on the northeast corner of Seventh and Casanova Streets. The Linsleys moved throughout the west until 1939 when they settled in Atherton. They had two children, George Henry and Mary Louise. Mabel moved back to Carmel during the last years of her life. She died in 1982 at the age of 90.

Many people will remember Anne Linhart who lived in Carmel from 1978 to 1992. Anne's daughter, Liz Linhart-Money, Mary Dummage's great great granddaughter, attended Mission school, Carmel Middle School, and graduated from Robert Louis Stevenson in 1992.

Children of George Linsley who will attend the reunion include: Kathryn Brenson of Santa Rosa; Karen Lyncoln of Seeley Lake, Montana; Ginny Linsley and her husband Simon Kent of Chicago; Chris and Valorie Linsley and Paula Knuthson and her husband Chuck, all of Roseville.

Children of Marilou Linhart who will attend include: Margaret McGowan of Bend, Oregon; Anne Linhart of Santa Olivas; and John and Colleen Linhart of Chico.

Highest honor bestowed on park volunteers

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AFTER WORKING thousands of hours as volunteers at the Point Sur State Historic Park, John and Carol O'Neil were individually acknowledged last month for their dedication with the Volunteer Medallion for Superior Achievement from the California Department of Parks and Recreation, the highest honor bestowed upon a volunteer.

John has spent more than 3,000 hours leading tours, heading the volunteer training committee and working on the preservation of the once dilapidated Big Sur lighthouse.

"I volunteer at Point Sur and spend all that time because it's an historic treasure we ought to preserve and make available to the public," he said. "Working there is a unique experience."

O'Neil said one building has already been completed, and the other's almost done. "When we started, everything was abandoned and closed up, and now it looks almost brand new."

Carol O'Neil, who has spent 4,000 volunteer hours at Point Sur, leads tours and oversees the scheduling of the 100 volunteers who run the park.

"When you don't get a paycheck, you're not really sure who's watching and you sometimes wonder if anyone notices," she said. "Apparently, they do."

Mrs. O'Neil added that anyone interested in becoming a volunteer at Point Sur should contact her as soon as possible at 647-8261 to join the next training session.

A little code enforcement goes a long way

QUITE A FEW Carmelites were skeptical when the town hired a new code enforcement officer three years ago. Everyone acknowledges the need for strict protection of the town's character and history. But the person in charge of requiring compliance with Carmel's complex zoning code could easily abuse that power. He might be tempted to look the other way in exchange for favors, or conveniently "forget" to notice when a friend displayed an extra sign or a flag or somesuch.

Or he could take the code to ridiculous lengths, picking nits about the window displays, signage or decor of every shop in town and citing homeowners left and right for petty transgressions.

The code enforcement officer also undoubtedly gets plenty of tips about zoning code wrongdoing — real and imaginary — in town. Anybody who is slightly annoyed with a neighbor's attitude or habits can usually cook up a reason why the neighbor should be investigated for a code violation. Turning somebody you don't like in to City Hall is, unfortunately, a favorite way to seek revenge.

"People try to use the city as a 'gotcha' and draw us in to what is really a dispute between neighbors," said city administrator Jere Kersnar.

Every police officer is familiar with the need for judicious law enforcement. Handing out tickets for exceeding the speed limit by one or two miles an hour, for example, would upset the populace and undermine respect for the law.

Heavy-handed enforcement of Carmel's zoning code would cause the same problem.

"Even something as black-and-white as the speed limit is a matter of discretion. Some of our codes are not black and white and there's an element of judgment and balancing the spirit as well as the letter of the code," Kersnar commented. "Code enforcement is a tough job."

The outgoing code enforcement officer, Chip Rerig, did an excellent job handling the complicated balancing act this job entails. He's now a planner at city hall and the code enforcement spot has been filled by a newcomer, Paul Mugan.

Carmel's code is seen as overly fussy by some, and as too permissive by others. Standing in the middle is Paul Mugan — the man who can make everybody's day by handling his job with fairness and common sense.

Term limits for Mayor?

Dear Editor:

With regard to Carmel-by-the-Sea's mayoral race, I believe in term limits.

I am aware of two other potential candidates who considered running for mayor and then changed their minds when they became aware that Susan McCloud had taken out filing papers. "She'll do a good job," each of them told friends.

I agree. As a Carmel native who took on major responsibilities in her career and who is financially prudent, Sue McCloud can be expected to be a strong, clear-thinking mayor who will accomplish things in many areas that have been left hanging for far too long.

Ken White has put tremendous time into his role of elected official. Isn't it time to pass the torch?

Advice for Republicans

Dear Editor,

I recently registered as a Republican, primarily because I believe in and support the effort of a local group of Republicans and want to elect them. I applaud the Mainstream Republicans for wanting to change the direction of the Republican Party's leadership in Monterey County, and I think the direction that Mainstream Republicans are going is the right one for our county and our country. Many people complain without working to find solutions to the problems affecting our communities. Hard work, and love for our nation are what made this country great. I support Mainstream Republicans for rolling up their

Creative solution

Dear Editor,

Hurrah for the design review committee! They have put together a plan of flexibility and common sense that may bring Carmel back to its roots. I encourage all citizens to read the proposal to understand its intent before the next meeting. It very creatively addresses the problems of size and repetitive design that we have seen in the past years. Let's give it a chance.

A special Dad

Dear Editor,

My Dad, Jim Kelsey, will turn 75 on Feb. 13. He has accomplished a lot in those years and contributed much to the City of Carmel. He helped raise many young kids, teaching right from wrong, honesty, sportsmanship, not to be a quitter.

I'm proud he is my Dad. I was raised in a good home, without fighting or yelling, as is more common today. We knew we were loved no matter what we did. Therefore, if we were in trouble we could always go to him and my Mom.

Who would have ever thought having two daughters would result in seven grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren?

So, Happy Birthday, Dad. I love you up to the sky and back to my heart.

Lymphatic massage to scalp therapy

Spa goers may select from such services as hydrotherapy ($83), full-body, cranial sacral, shiatsu or lymphatic massage (each $153), aromatherapy massage ($138), mud-therapy body wraps ($125), natural body scrubs ($78), personalized facials, deluxe manicures and pedicures ($43 and $58, respectively), hair and scalp therapy, tub soaks and specialty showers.

The spa's "signature" shower is a work of art: Oakland sculptor Michelle Gregor was Gregor's sculptured blue and green ceramic fish appear to swim around the three walls of the shower, bathed by water jets from all sides and by a waterfall that spills down from on high. An attendant regulates the flow and force of the water.

While the signature shower stands out as the one note of color in an otherwise hushed spa, many of the therapy rooms are remarkable for their unique purpose: The ionization room (sometimes called the inhalation room) features a "Living Air" ionizer which emits mood enhancing negative ions and ozone. In the same room, an aromatherapy machine reduces stress.

One of the more visually spectacular rooms is the Soft Wrap Suite, which has two soft pack tables much like giant water beds covered with voluminous sleeping bags. Spa guests who have been swathed in mud or herbal wraps ($95) lie down in the warm, Nearby is an Osytherm-XL hydrotherapy tub with a high powered jet hose used under water, four soaking tubs with mood-enhancing herbal blends, and four showers used after mud and wrap treatments. The Vichy room has a seven-head Vichy shower to rinse off mud imported from Italy or herbal or scrub residue. A cedar-lined Swedish dry heat sauna, as well as a steam room with moist heat, opens pores.

Facials and massages

There are four rooms for aesthetic facials and 12 massage rooms, two with fireplaces. Three of the rooms have French doors that look out onto the first hole of the Pebble

Beach Golf Links.

Forty massage therapists and ten aestheticians are on staff. A 1,000-square-foot salon is used for hair treatments, manicures, pedicures, waxing, makeup services and facials.

Overseeing The Spa is Jill Taylor, who came to Pebble Beach in 1998 from The Phoenician Spa in Scottsdale and before that, from the Sonoma Mission Inn and Spa in the Sonoma Valley.

Taylor pointed out that healing extracts from the sea and forest are blended into signature body care products showcased at The Spa and available from the Spa boutique.

The Spa facilities are open 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., and spa services from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Guests at the three Pebble Beach hotels have priority for spa reservations, but The Spa and all of the Pebble Beach facilities are open to the public.

For Spa reservations, call 649-7615.

Sculptor Michelle Gregor of Oakland was commissioned to design and execute ceramic sculptures for The Spa's signature shower. A stunning work in blues and greens, it is equipped with numerous water jets and an overhead waterfall system which will be controlled by an attendant for spa guests.

Commission OKs design for seniors' building on San Carlos

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL ARCHITECTURAL designer John Mandurrage can finally move forward with his senior residence project, the Carmel Planning Commission unanimously decided Feb. 9.

The commission's decision that an old building on the site — the Hitchcock House — is not an historic resource and can be demolished will be finalized at a later date. In the meantime the commission gave final approval to the design for the San Carlos Inn which will take its place.

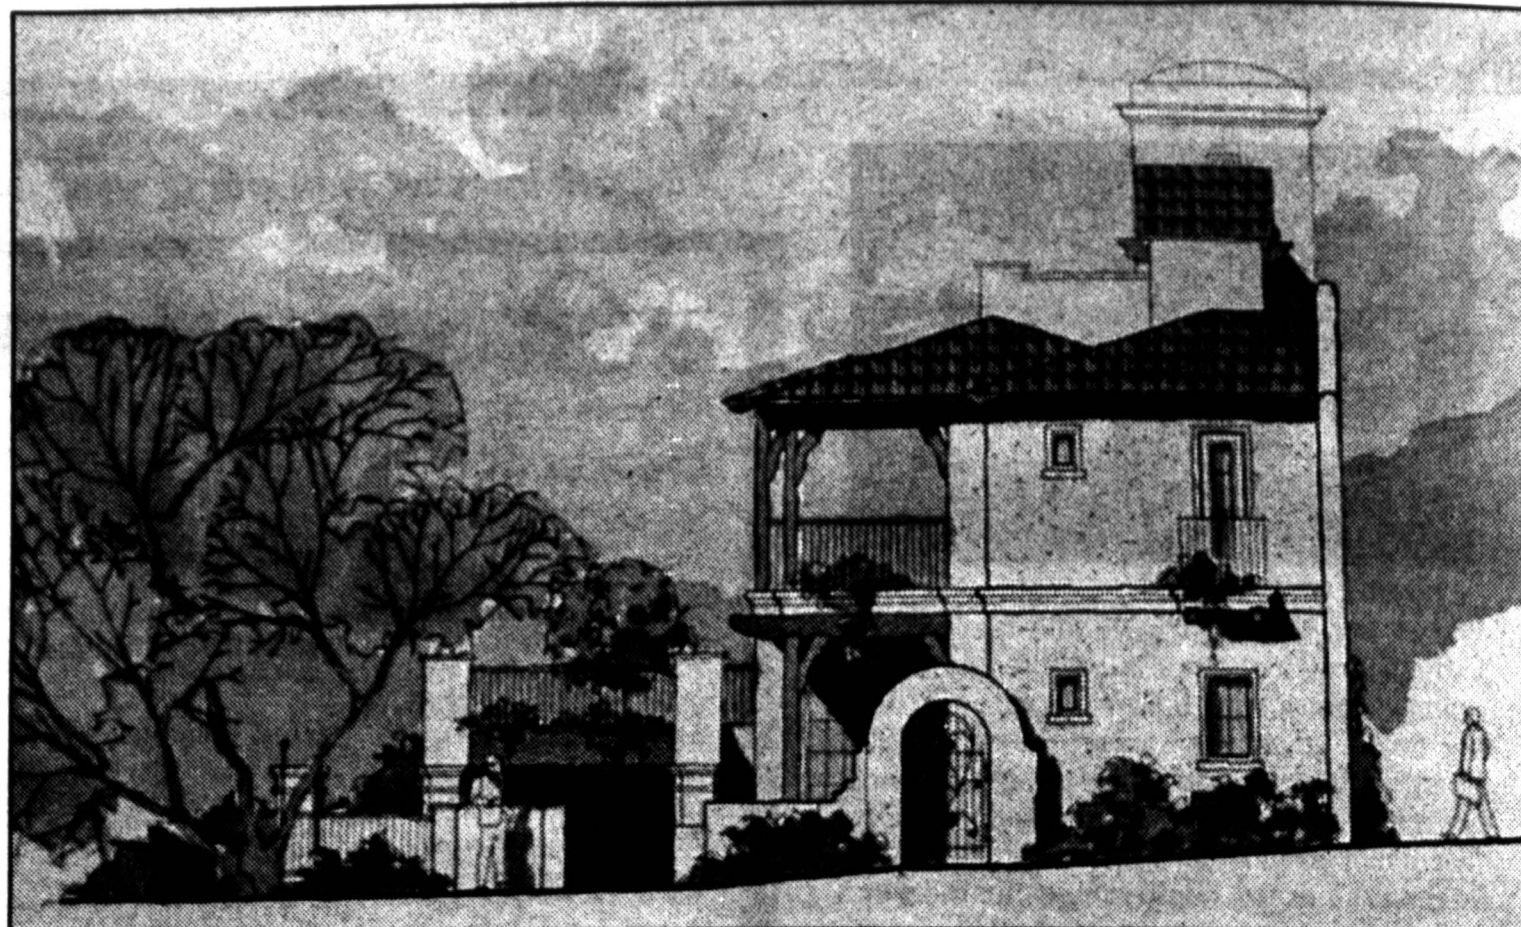

The plan for the inn has gone through numerous changes after a series of hearings in front of the commission and discussions with staff. It will be a 7,429-square-foot, 13-unit residential care facility with a 5,500-square-foot parking garage and storage area below.

Although Mandurrage will bring final design details before the planning commission for further discussion, the overall design — a Spanish-style plaster building with clay barrel tile roof, non-clad wood windows and wrought iron railings — was approved.

The application included the request for a variance of height to 30 feet — the municipal code allows 26 — in order for the required elevator to get to the roof garden. A floor area bonus was also allowed because the project includes a public walkway connecting Mission and San Carlos Streets.

The design for John Mandurrage's San Carlos Inn project includes a public walkway which will connect San Carlos and Mission Streets between 7th and 8th.

Chair Jan Fisher aired her concerns about the walkway's threat to the privacy of the inn's elderly residents.

"My main concern is the intrablock walkway because people living in this facility will be older, and conscious of their security," she said. "It's the social aspect that bothers me and I'm not sure planters will make them happy. I do think there will be a lack of privacy."

Mandurrage responded that if he could close the walkway while keeping the floor area bonus to make the units large enough, he would.

"I would rather not have strangers walking through there, throwing trash and making people nervous," he told commissioners.

Commissioner Frank Wasko said he felt the walkway's benefits to the community outweighed security concerns.

"I can't see the security issue overriding the benefit we as Carmelites get from an intrablock walkway, so I kind of like it, but I can also understand Mr. Mandurrage's desire to block it off as soon as possible because there are fewer problems for property owners," he said. "It's not a deal breaker for me, but I still like it."

The commission ultimately settled on the right to review a security plan for the inn along with the other design details set to be discussed at a future meeting.

The commission delayed finalizing its findings for demolition and certification of the EIR until March 22, so that they can be more thoroughly defined and will have a better chance at standing up to any legal challenge that might be initiated.

Carmel Valley moratorium's effective date established

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SIX PROJECTS proposed for Carmel Valley got a new lease on life this week when the Monterey County Board of Supervisors voted Feb. 8 that a building moratorium in the scenic valley would not apply to any projects which were submitted to the county before Oct. 19, 1999.

The final wording of the moratorium ordinance — which will affect new subdivisions but not new homes on existing lots — will be heard by the board March 28, and will probably go into effect 31 days later.

Fifth district supervisor Dave Potter wanted a June 7, 1999, effective date — the date the California Transportation Commission officially withdrew funds from the Hatton Canyon freeway project.

That decision, which eliminated the only officially recognized solution to traffic congestion in the scenic valley, has been cited as making a moratorium necessary.

The majority of the public who spoke during the hearing supported the June date. Max Chaplin, speaking on behalf of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, said knowledge of possible growth limitations in the valley was widespread and the Hatton Canyon freeway de-funding widely publicized.

"June 7 has precedence and later dates smack of favoritism towards larger developers in the valley," Chaplin said.

Of the 24 applications currently in the county planning department pipeline,

Coastal Commission may bless 'illegal' retaining wall

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE STORMS of February 1998 damaged hundreds of homes in Monterey County and left some property owners scrambling to shore up before another big storm could hit.

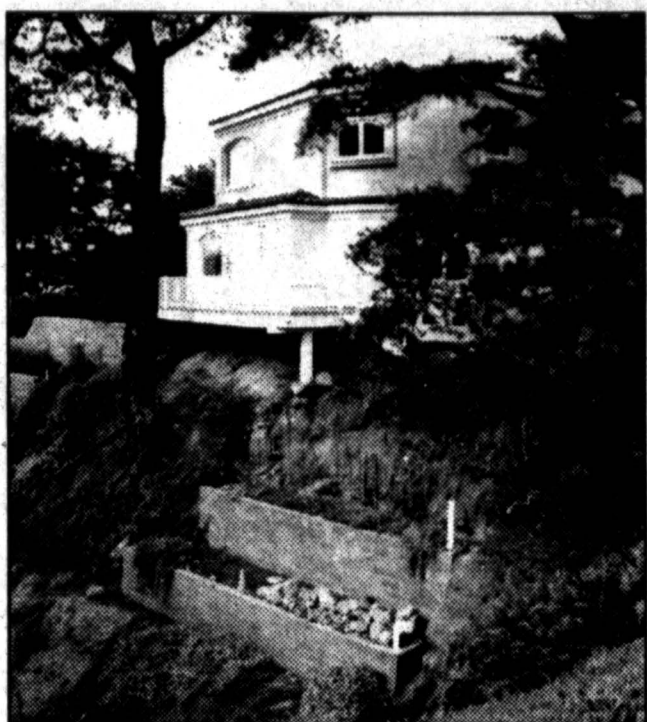

One family on Yankee Point in Carmel Highlands saw part of the hillside beneath their home wash away and started work on a four-tiered retaining wall without a building permit — which got them red-tagged and landed them in hot water with some of their neighbors.

"I was told by a contractor that four-foot walls could be built without a permit," Frank Dittrich said in a letter to the California Coastal Commission. The commission will decide next week whether to let Dittrich finish the retaining wall below his home, which perches above McLean Creek.

Monterey County approved completion of the work in December, but another resident of Yankee Point Drive, Paul Ernest, is fighting it.

Ernest says retroactive approval of the retaining wall work would send a message to other property owners that "if you go by the rules, it will take longer with much more hassle and you often get less than those who break the rules."

The coastal commission's staff recommended approving the work already done and allowing the retaining wall to be finished. A soils engineer says the wall is necessary to "protect the . . . building structure from settlement or failure," the staff told the commission in a report made public last week.

Even if the commission approves the retaining wall, it still might take legal action against Dittrich.

Retroactive approval of the permit "does not constitute an admission as to the legality of any development undertaken with a coastal development permit," the staff report says.

The coastal commission will consider the Dittrich permit on Feb. 16 in San Diego.

Carmel Foundation project shot down in Pacific Grove

By KIRSTIE WILDE

WITH THE words "massive, massive, massive" ringing in their ears, the applicants trying to develop a large downtown Pacific Grove lot owned by the Carmel Foundation were sent packing Feb. 9 by the P.G. city council.

Reacting bitterly to the rejection of their project, Michael Albov told the council that there would be no redesign of the building he and the other investors spent 15 months working on. "It isn't going to happen. You're going to end up with an empty lot."

Albov, Carmel designer John Mandurrango and other investors had agreed to pay the non-profit Carmel Foundation $450,000 for the street-to-street parcel at the corner of Pine and Forest Avenues — but not until their plans for a 20,700-square-foot building were approved by the city of Pacific Grove. The existing, much smaller, drive-through bank building on the parcel has been vacant since Comerica Bank left years ago.

"The money would have gone a long way to serve the seniors at the Carmel Foundation," said Albov.

11th-hour reduction

The three-story design included 10 parking spaces and retail shops on the ground floor, offices on the second floor and a residence on the third. At the start of the meeting, Albov told the council his group "heard loud and clear" the city's concern that the building was too big. He offered an 11th-hour compromise: to lower the building by a floor and push the perimeter closer to the street. "We want to work with you, but we need your help," he said.

Several of the council members complimented Albov on the concept of "mixed-use" for downtown. One citizen even suggested that approving the building could also solve the long-standing controversy over whether to build a multi-million dollar civic center to house the city planning department, which is now in a ramshackle building across the street. "The city could rent the second floor and your whole problem would be solved by private money," he said.

'The money would have gone a long way to serve the seniors at the Carmel Foundation.'

— Michael Albov

But several other people who live nearby, including one who recently moved from Orange County, said the proposed building was simply too tall, too bulky and would exacerbate parking problems in the neighborhood.

The P.G. planning commission late last year came to the same conclusion, voting 6-1 to reject the project.

Although Mayor Sandy Koffman said she was sorry that the applicant would have to start "from square one" with a new design, new application, new fees, and new hearings at the planning commission level, she didn't see how the legal process could allow a redesign of the building to be approved by the city council.

The other members agreed, voting unanimously to deny Albov's appeal.

nine would be exempt from the moratorium ordinance the board will consider next month and were not affected by the decision on the ordinance's effective date.

But six projects were submitted between June and October last year and the fate of these projects was at issue this week.

Swayed by pleas from the public, most of whom were from his district, Potter said he would support an earlier date. "I'm compelled enough today by testimony and public comment to say I could support the June date. This moratorium is simply a stoppage in time for a few moments," he said. "We are to be a body reflective of the public and what the sentiment is."

But Acting County Counsel Adrienne Grover said the June date could not be used because of lack of public notice.

"From a legal standpoint, the choice has to do with due process and notice concerns," she said, noting that the June date was not due to any action by the county, but by the state, and therefore could not be considered adequate public notice.

Regardless of the date chosen, Potter said he was pleased with the board's progress towards finally tackling development and infrastructure issues in Carmel Valley. "It's taken an eternity to get here," he said.
